From the mist of the Cardamom Hills to the port

Cardamom has been grown in the Western Ghats for centuries — the range is known, quite literally, as the Cardamom Hills. Our pods are procured directly from smallholder estates around Vandanmedu, in Idukki district, Keralam: a high-altitude belt of shade-grown plantations, cool nights and heavy monsoon rainfall that produce the dense oil content and deep green colour international buyers look for

From Idukki, Keralam the harvest travels a short distance across the state line to our own processing centre in Bodinayakanur, Theni district, Tamil Nadu — where cleaning, grading, moisture-conditioning and packing take place under HACCP and ISO 22000-aligned protocols

“Procurement in the hills of Keralam, processing at the gateway to Tamil Nadu.”

The result is a short, controlled chain of custody from vine to container — traceable back to the estate, and consistent enough to hold a grade specification shipment after shipment.
